

As a company, Aqua believes in giving back to the communities we serve, and recognizes the value that volunteer service has for both local organizations as well as our employees. It is with this mindset, that an initiative to roll out a Community Volunteerism Pilot Program at Aqua was created. Through this program, employees will be able to participate in company-sponsored community outreach events, and build camaraderie at the same time.

Employees from Aqua Pennsylvania made two trips to Philabundance, the region's largest hunger relief organization, on October 5 and 17. Among the volunteers assisting with sorting, packaging and preparing food items for distribution, was Aqua President and CEO Chris Franklin.

"This is great, we're getting a chance to help other people, get reacquainted with friends, get a little exercise, all good things," said Franklin.
